Cause of Death Definition: Apoplexy
A sudden, nonconvulsive loss of neurologic function due to an ischemic or hemorrhagic intracranial vascular event. In general, cerebrovascular accidents are classified by anatomic location in the brain, vascular distribution, etiology, age of the affected individual, and hemorrhagic vs. nonhemorrhagic nature. Noted events in his life were:

- Isaac can be found in History of Barry & Eaton Counties, Michigan: Page 658 published in 1891 in Barry And Eaton Counties, Michigan:

  About fifty years have passed since this gentleman became a resident of Barry County, taking up his abode on section 17, Orangeville Township. He came from Detroit on a stage and had to carry a rail and make frequent use of it in prying the wheels out of the mud. The section to which he came was a dense forest in which Indians roved in search of game. He built a log house in which he lived about fifteen years and he then put up a substantial frame dwelling, more in keeping with his circumstances and surroundings.

  The father of our subject was Philip Fish, a native of Rhode Island, who went from that State to New York and made a permanent residence in Oneida County. He was numbered among the pioneers of that county and devoted his time to tilling the soil. He married Miss Nancy Smith, who was born in Utica, N. Y., and died in Oneida County. On the homestead there, he of whom we write was born December 14, 1814, and there he studied in the district school, occupying a slab bench in a log building and writing with a quill pen at a desk beside the wall. He had two sisters who died of consumption in 1820, and has two brothers, the one living in Detroit, this State, and the other in Lapeer, Mich.

Mr. Fish's fortunes were shared for some years by a faithful wife, who bore the maiden name of Eliza Livermore. She was born in Whitesboro, N. Y., and died on the homestead where our subject now lives in 1879. To her were born seven children, those surviving being John, a rising attorney in Wisconsin; Fidus, a lawyer in Allegan, this State; Edward, a physician in Wisconsin; and Sarah, Mrs. Lemuel Wing, whose home is in Orangeville.

Mr. Fish has been Township Treasurer, Justice of the Peace, etc., and has been an ernest public servant in whatever capacity he was called upon to act. He was a member of the Grange and is identified with the Baptist Church, of which he has been a Trustee. Politically he is a Democrat. He is a man of respectability, industrious habits and general intelligence and is well regarded by his associates. Fish's Lake in Orangeville Township was named in his honor.
